

For Immediate Release...

The Town of Stratford, Connecticut is partnering with eReclaim LLC to host a community wide electronics recycling collection event on Saturday May 8, 2010 from 10am-1pm to help Stratford "Go Green."

At the Town of Stratford's Community Recycling Event, residents, businesses of the community may drop off their electronic recyclables (typically anything that plugs in or needs a battery) to Public Works Garage at 550 Patterson Avenue, Stratford, Connecticut where the eReclaim staff will be on site to handle all of the collections.

Statistics say 75% of all old electronics are in storage or in a person's basement. Practically everyone has old electronics just sitting in their basement, garages, and offices because most people don't know how or where to recycle their electronics. By recycling them at your event they are not only cleaning out clutter in your basements and garages, you are also making an impact on the environment.

Mayor John Harkins stated, "We are glad to partner with eReclaim to hold an event that provides this benefit for local residents and the community. As our society become more dependent on technology the issue of disposing of e-wastes is going to become an issue for more and more households. The benefits of holding a program of this nature are obvious from both a resident and environmental perspective."

The event is free to residents of the Town of Stratford; the only item we must charge residents for is Televisions. Up to 27" is $10.00 and 28" + is $20.00. Absolutely no other waste materials of any kind will be accepted at this event. People bringing other waste materials will be turned away at the door.
